Enchanting Edinburgh

Edinburgh, the capital of Scotland, is among most beautiful European capital cities. From NATO to MTV Europe, Edinburgh is a UNESCO World Heritage Site that attracts diverse audiences. The city's exhibition and conference facilities integrate history and old world charm with state-of-the art venues. What other city can boast a castle that hosted a Rod Stewart concert? The city centre enables attendees to enjoy all that Edinburgh has to offer from Edinburgh Castle, the Royal Mile and Palace of Holyroodhouse.

Getting into and around Edinburgh is easy. Transatlantic flights as well as European carriers provide service into Edinburgh. The airport is six miles west of city centre and can be accessed via taxi or Airlink Express Bus service. The compact city centre is convenient for walking, local bus or taxi service. Electrical current is 50Hz 230 volt so don't forget plug adapters for laptops and transformers for demonstration equipment. For more information about travel in Edinburgh visit <http://www.edinburgh.org/> and <http://www.edinburghairport.com/>

Special event and exhibition managers have diverse venues to choose from in Edinburgh. The award-winning Edinburgh International Conference Centre is centrally located in the city with exhibition areas, a 1200-seat auditorium and expandable meeting rooms. The Edinburgh City Chambers is a unique small conference venue for seminars, workshops and special events. Dundas Castle, Gosford House, Wilton House and the Royal Yacht Britannia are just a few of the distinctive venues available for receptions, product launches or company incentive dinners. As with most large cities, many hotels also include conference and event facilities. For complete information about venues contact info@conventionedinburgh.com

Exhibit building regulations and materials are the same as other United Kingdom and European venues. All designs are subject to approval by show management, fire inspectors and venue managers. Avoid the stress of working overseas by taking time to prepare and select experienced contractors. For additional information and travel tips visit <http://www.globalexhibitmanagement.com>

Industry Update

The next event for trade professionals in the U.S. is Healthcare Convention & Exhibitors Association (HCEA), 25-28 June, in Las Vegas, Nevada.
